Chiang's Fighting Words of 6 War Years

"The time of the enemy's defeat is near at hand."

DESTRUCTION - Shanghai, 1937 — VENGEANCE - Salween Front 1943

Associated Press Features

SIX years ago today, the second World War began. On July 7, 1937, a band of Japanese opened fire on Chinese troops on the Marco Polo bridge at Lukauchiao, on the outskirts of Peiping.

Throughout the years since one man has held China together, directed movement of her unyielding armies. He is Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

These are excerpts from his messages to China and the world during the six years of war, taken from the generalissimo's new book, "Resistance and Reconstruction," published by Harper.

1937: Since we are a weak country, there is only one thing to do when we reach the limit of endurance, we must throw every ounce of energy into the struggle for our national existence and independence. When that is done, neither time nor circumstances will permit our stopping midway to seek peace. Only a determination to sacrifice ourselves to the uttermost can bring us ultimate victory.

1938: Future historians will, I believe, regard our war of resistance as the most significant event in this period of world history, since by our enormous sacrifices we are contributing not only to the good of the Chinese nation but also to the welfare of all mankind.

1939: The outbreak of war in Europe is a great misfortune for mankind. But we can clearly see the cause of it. Eight years ago Japan tore international treaties to pieces and began her aggression in China. It is unfortunate that foreign powers have not enforced effective measures to check Japanese aggression. As a result of their failure to do this, Europe too has been at the mercy of aggressor states, and the spirit of aggression and violence has spread like wildfire.

1940: The new Japanese slogan, 'New Order in East Asia,' means Japanese control of East Asia by means of the annexation of China. Actually, however, the Japanese are forging for themselves fetters from which they will never free themselves; they are moving towards their own destruction and collapse. The beginning of that collapse will mark the deliverance of the Northeast.

1941: Looking at the world today we see vast changes going on. The moral and material life of humanity will undoubtedly be profoundly modified by them and all political and economic theories will be recast as a result. One thing, however, appears certain: that a nation must be armed and organized with modern efficiency if it is to survive, while thought and action incompatible with national fighting strength stand to be eliminated by the demands of time.

1942: The history of past wars is full of examples of early successes won by those who are disastrously defeated in the end. One enemy has taken the evil course to make us his slaves; we for our part have made our aim the freedom and equality of status for our people. On his side the motive is self-seeking; on ours it is justice. Justice is always triumphant over greed.

1943: We can see already the first signs of coming victory in this world war against world aggression. The time of the enemy's defeat is near at hand.

113 TEACHERS GET PAY RAISES

Upward salary adjustments for 113 Marion teachers totaling $7,172 annually were approved by the Marion city board of education at its meeting in the school administration building yesterday afternoon.

The adjustments were recommended by Supt. E. E. Holt of the city schools to carry out provisions of a teacher salary adjustment program adopted by the board in the 1940-41 term. That program called for annual adjustments for teachers during their first 12 years of elementary school work or first 17 years of junior and senior high school, and yesterday's action was entirely in line with that program, officials pointed out.

Although the board's action involved increases totaling $7,172, there will be a number of factors tending to decrease the payroll requirements for the city schools system next term that will offset all but approximately $4,500 of the additional funds needed, Supt. Holt said today. He explained that a dozen teachers have been replaced so far this summer, and that the replacement personnel will start at lower salaries than those leaving the schools. This will bring about part of the reduction. Another step toward keeping salary costs at a minimum will be the elimination of at least one teaching position.

From $1 to $10 a Month

The salary adjustment program calls for upward adjustments of $45 a year for teachers during their first 12 years of elementary teaching or first 17 years of junior or senior high school work. However, some teachers were far below the required level of salaries when the program was begun, and they are receiving additional adjustments from year to year to gradually bring their salaries up to the level outlined in the board's 1940-41 program. This accounts for the fact that some of the adjustments authorized yesterday range as high as $10 a month. Other adjustments were as little as $1 a month.

When the 1940-41 program was set up, more than half of the

DEMPSEY GRANTED DECREE OF DIVORCE

By The Associated Press

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 7—Lieut. Commdr. William Harrison Dempsey, U. S. Coast Guard reserve, the former world's heavyweight boxing champion was awarded an interlocutory decree of divorce today from Hannah Williams Dempsey, former musical comedy actress.

Official Referee J. Addison Young of the supreme court, who heard the case last month, ruled that Dempsey's charge of his wife's infidelity in Los Angeles on Nov. 22, 1942, "was proven beyond doubt."

The former boxer named Benny Woodall, former lightweight fighter and one-time trainer of Lew Jenkins, as the co-respondent in the case. Private detectives testified they found Hannah Dempsey and Woodall together in a Los Angeles bungalow.

Referee Young, in his decision, ruled that judgment would be entered upon presentation of findings by the attorneys, "at which time the court will consider the question of the custody of the children and other relevant matters."

New Food Ceiling Price Program Scheduled Here

"Dollars and Cents" Limit Announced for Four Counties; Will Go Into Effect Next Monday.

New "dollars and cents" ceiling prices on hundreds of food items will go into effect in Marion and three other north central Ohio counties next Monday.

A group of Marion county retail grocers and meat dealers heard the story about the new ceiling prices in a meeting last night at the Y.M.C.A. Arthur Zachman, president of the Marion Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers association, was the speaker.

Although an exhaustive study would be necessary to determine exactly the effect the new prices will have on various families' grocery bills, officials say they believe the prices will effect a slight reduction in food costs for most families. However, in a number of instances, the new ceiling prices are above those now prevalent.

Change Effected

In the past, grocers have been obliged to prepare their own lists of ceiling prices, using a "price freeze" date of some past month or an OPA formula based on the wholesale price plus a mark-up for the grocer's profit. As a result, the same item might be selling at half a dozen different prices in Marion. Under the new program, the ceiling price will be the same in comparable types of stores. Separate price lists are set up for four types of stores, based largely on their annual dollar volume of business.

Food dealers at last night's meeting, after a hurried inspection of the new price lists, expressed varying reactions. One grocer said he would be permitted by the new schedule to increase the prices on a number of items in his stock. Another commented that while some items could be raised in price others would have to be cut so sharply that handling them would be unprofitable. He added, "If these prices stick, I'm simply going to have to quit handling some of the items on the list."

Fixed by OPA

The prices will "stick," Mr. Zachman commented, unless OPA in Washington can be induced to change them. He added that the Marion county ration office and the state ration office had no voice in the new program—the new prices were fixed by Washington OPA officials on the basis of a survey made by OPA investigators who checked the wholesale houses supplying food dealers in this territory. He said the OPA averaged the prices the

CHIANG CALLS FOR JAP BLOW

Cites Present as Time To Reap Great Results Against Foe.

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, July 7—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek issued a call today to the United Nations to strike at once in force against Japan because now, he declared, is the opportune moment "to reap great results" in reducing the time and cost of final victory."

In a message to the people of the allied nations on the anniversary of the day six years ago that China was attacked, the war leaders asserted Japan now "is at her weakest as her ready resources are approaching a point of exhaustion."

"Should we let her have further respite to complete impregnable defenses and to wage a long drawnout war with us," he added, "the time and price the allies will have to pay to defeat her will be many times longer and heavier than what are required today."

General Chiang told his own people in another message that the time limit for utter defeat of the Japanese invasion armies "cannot exceed two years."

President Sends Message to China

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7—President Roosevelt sent a special short wage radio greeting to the people of China today on the sixth anniversary of their resistance to Japanese aggression.

The message, read for the President in a transmission from San Francisco to Chungking, was followed the excerpts from former addresses by Mr. Roosevelt in his own voice.

"Our friends have long known what our enemies are learning today," the message declared, "that the promises of the United States are always kept and our pledges are always redeemed.

"The statements which follow have been made by me at various times since we joined hands with you in this war. It is good to know that the hopes and the promises I expressed on these former occasions are all being borne out today."

TONS OF BOMBS POURED ON AIR FIELD IN SICILY

Forts and Liberators Hammer Gerbini Airdrome in Savage Knockout Blows.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July ... — Flying Fortresses from North Africa and Liberators from the Middle East command poured hundred of tons of high explosive and fragmentation bombs on Gerbini airdrome in southern Sicily yesterday as the full siege of that vital enemy base entered the fourth day with its 96th hour.

The all-out effort to knock Gerbini and its four satellite fields from the map appeared nearing completion, photographs revealing terrific damage to administration buildings, hangars, parked aircraft and landing strips from the relentless poundings of the last two days and a night.

Destroy 41 Planes

It was at Gerbini that Flying Fortress gunners of the Northwest African command destroyed 41 enemy fighters on Monday, and at least one more axis plane was shot down during yesterday's double daylight blow.

A Middle East communique said approximately 50 Liberators participated in yesterday's smash, dropping more than 205,000 pounds of high explosive and fragmentation bombs on the Gerbini fields. One enemy fighter was reported destroyed and two damaged while every Liberator returned safely.

Flying Fortresses from this base struck shortly after dawn and reported hits on an ammunition dump, administration buildings, hangars and five landing strips. Five planes of the northwest African force were reported missing from the day's operations, against two enemy aircraft destroyed.

RAF on Raids

During Monday night RAF Wellingtons hammered at Gerbini, starting five fires, while Biscari and Milo airfields were assaulted by South African Bostons and Baltimores and British Bostons. The same night heavy British bombers of the Middle East command pounded railway installations at Catania, Eastern Sicilian port.

Axis fighter opposition which reached a crescendo Monday, when more than 100 war planes attacked a single formation of 27 Flying Fortresses, dwindled yesterday to almost nothing, returning pilots reported. The fourth day of the concentrated attack on Sicily's airfields from here saw the score stand at 110 axis craft destroyed against an allied loss of 19.

Veteran observers cautioned against jumping to the conclusion that the allies have won complete air supremacy over Sicily, but the sudden falling off in enemy fighter interception indicated the Germans had lost most of their Sicilian-based land planes and were in need of reinforcements.

Strike Strands 28,000 in Rockefeller Center

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 7—An estimated 28,000 office workers and visitors were stranded yesterday in the towering structures of Rockefeller Center by a 55-minute strike of 225 elevator operators.

Officials of Rockefeller Center, a showplace of the city, and of the AFL building maintenance craftsmen's union said the walkout resulted from an internal dispute in the union.

WAVES SMASH TOLEDO DIKE

Hundreds of Families Homeless as Lake Erie Sweeps Over Large Area.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, July 7—Hundreds of families were homeless today after pounding waves crumbled an earthen dike along Lake Erie and released a flood that swept rich farm land inundated two resort-residential areas and caused thousands of dollars damage.

Police and Coast Guardsmen worked throughout the night evacuating scores by boat after nearly 300 homes were surrounded by water which poured through breaks in the dike at Reno Beach, 15 miles east of here yesterday evening.

Seventy-five homes were cut off at Reno Beach when two sections of the three-mile dike gave way. One break in the 10-foot high wall was 200 feet long, the other 50 feet.

The flood quickly spread out over a lake front area four miles long and a mile wide, surrounding more than 200 homes in the Howard farms residential section two miles east of Reno Beach and covering a number of fertile vegetable farms.

Many of the evacuees were taken to a 500-bed Red Cross emergency center set up in a school near Reno Beach. Others were sheltered by friends.

Full - strength mobilization of every police and emergency agency in Lucas county was ordered as the waters continued to spread. The state highway patrol sent its entire force from Findlay to the scene and Sheriff Charles Hennessy kept most of his staff on duty in the flooded area.

War Savings Stamp Sales Lag

Drive To Raise $33,000 in July Towards Purchase of Carrier Nets $2,642 in First Six Days.

The sale of war savings stamps in Marion county in connection with the nationwide July drive to sell enough stamps to purchase the mystery aircraft carrier Shangri-La lagged seriously today, war bond committee officials reported.

During the first six days of July stamp sales at the Marion postoffice, the county's main disbursing agent for war savings stamps, amounted to $2,542.25. The postoffice distributes stamps to the county's banks and building and loans as well as to various industrial and commercial interests and the general public.

Actually the total sales so far this month breaks down to an average of $600 for each of the four days in which the postoffice has been open since the beginning of the month. But this average is considerably below the average of over $1,000 daily which must be made if the county's share in the national drive is to be reached.

Marion county's share in the drive for $150,000,000 for the purchase of the carrier to bomb Tokyo is $33,000.

Appointed recently by Elmer J. Schoenlaub, county war bond chairman, to direct the Marion county phase of the carrier drive was Jerry Passen. He is being assisted by a committee which includes Arthur S. Zachman, Frank Barnhart, Maurice Coen, George Planck, William Collins, M. Hollingshead, Ray Sutton, Walter Axtholm, Harry J. Mautz, J. E. Mayden, Frank Heinlen and Ernest White.

"If each individual in Marion would purchase $1 worth of stamps during the month the quota would be topped," Mr. Passen said in appealing for public

SCORE 10 TO 1 IN FAVOR OF AMERICAN GUNS

Ten Enemy Vessels Sunk or Damaged to Loss of Cruiser by U. S. Navy.

By The Associated Press

American warships, shooting it out with the enemy at close quarters, have won a smashing victory in round No. 1 of the battle for naval supremacy in the Solomon Islands.

The score 10 to 1.

"The Japs have taken another damned good licking, Navy Secretary Frank Knox told cheering shipyard workers at Bremerton, Wash.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced U. S. naval forces caught the enemy in the narrow confines of Kula Gulf, above New Georgia Island, and probably sank six Japanese warships and damaged four others—at a cost of one American cruiser—in a flaming night battle July 5-6.

"Details are not yet available and a final assessment cannot be made," a communique said.

Kula Gulf Small

Kula gulf, only 15 miles long and eight miles wide, lies between New Georgia and Kolombangara islands, in the heart of the 700-mile-long Solomons archipelago where American forces have already captured Rendova island and are closing around the prize Japanese air base at Munda.

Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters, in immediate command of the Solomons offensive, said U. S. forces continued to hold the initiative on land, at sea and in the air.

The battle of Kula gulf has ended, it was announced, and American troops are still mopping up the Japanese on Rendova and southern New Georgia islands.

In the Solomons, the triumph scored by U. S. naval gunners in the battle of Kula gulf marked the second time in four days they had bested the Japanese, thus demonstrating a sharp edge over the enemy who once boasted that he had destroyed the entire allied fleet in the southwest Pacific.

A force of three Japanese cruisers and four destroyers was put to flight in a preliminary skirmish off Rendova island last Saturday, and it was believed then that American warships had set out in pursuit.

Back for More, Get It

While details were lacking, apparently the fleeing Japanese were reinforced and came back for more, with the Americans promptly obliging.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted Japanese naval forces had sunk "one enemy cruiser" and set another afire Sunday night in Kula gulf, and declared that torpedo boats the next morning sank three more allied war vessels.

After the naval battle, U. S. dive bombers found a damaged Japanese destroyer beached near Sambera harbor and scored seven direct hits with 500-pound bombs, touching off violent explosions and fires, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said.

Four Japanese planes were shot down when they attempted to break up the aerial "coup de grace" on the beached destroyer, and three other enemy aircraft were knocked down by American anti-aircraft fire at Rendova island, making a total of 184 enemy planes destroyed in the Solomons theater alone.

A communique said U. S. troops on Rendova had been reinforced and furious Japanese air thrusts to check the allied offensive by new raids on Australia, New Guinea and the Solomons had been broken up.

Defeat of the Japanese naval forces left imperiled the most immediate objective of the Solomons operations—the enemy air base of Munda on New Georgia.

U. S. Ships Shell Bases

Above it, Bairoko anchorage, main source of supply, had been battered by shells of United State warships in a bombardment from the Kula gulf the night before the naval battle. The U. S. destroyer Strong was lost during that action.

Below it, the reenforced American garrison on Rendova has been shelling it from five miles away. And on New Georgia American forces at Viru harbor are in a position to move overland, having consolidated position there.

The fact Kula gulf is only 15 miles long and about eight miles across at its widest point made it obvious the battle was between limited and comparatively light sea armament.

(In Washington, unofficial comment was that "the decisive naval action of the present offensive in the South Pacific apparently is still to be fought," with neither

South Hits Roosevelt's Labor Policy and Waste

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 7—Whether or not the president can be re-elected Democrats must have the backing of the solid South to win in the election next year. Because of the vital importance of the South to the Roosevelt administration politically, the Institute has during recent days been conducting a survey among the people, as distinguished from the leaders, of 13 southern states to determine their attitudes on a number of current problems including politics.

Of various possible Democratic candidates for president next year Mr. Roosevelt is the number one choice of Southern Democrats as reported last week. That does not mean, however, that they like all the things he is doing.

One question put to Southerners in the Institute's survey was this:

"What do you like least about the Roosevelt Administration?"

The White House foreign policy came in for virtually no criticism, but the handling of domestic affairs which Southern voters single out for blame:

Specifically, the three things most often cited about the Roosevelt Administration are (1) the feeling that the people suffer too much in the way of wartime restrictions and rationing, (2) extravagance in the use of public funds, and (3) too much delay in administration of war-time red tape and bureaucracy.

Although a number of Southern leaders have been vocal in opposing the President on labor legislation, and although a good deal of resentment against the Negro question is evident, it is interesting to note that neither subject is listed by Southern voters as being one of the major faults of the President.

Approximately 78 per cent of the southerners interviewed in the survey had no criticism of the President to offer regarding the way he has administered the office. The chief criticisms offered by the rest are as follows:

Poor handling of labor unions	22%
Extravagance, waste of public funds, paying people who don't work as hard as they should	11
Inefficiency, bureaucracy, red tape	11
Sponsoring too much equality of Negroes	5
Unfair treatment of Southern farmers	5
Stimulating liquor trade by repeal of prohibition	2
Failure to curb inflation	1
Too High Taxes	1
Unpreparedness for war	1

Of the 22 per cent who mentioned the labor union situation as their chief criticism, one-third singled out the handling of the recent coal crisis, blaming the Administration for "leniency toward John L. Lewis," or hesitation in settling the strike."

In that connection it is interesting to note that many southern Democrats in congress joined with Republicans in voting for the Connally-Smith anti-strike bill and in passing the bill over the President's veto.

The southern states included in the survey were Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Record War Screams Train Officers

By HERMAN R. ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

CAMP FORREST, Tenn.—First there were the eight noises—the creaking of ropes, the ringing of bells, and so forth. Then there was the sound of rifle shot. A machine gun began firing intermittently, and the explosion of a hand grenade. A man screamed in agony and threshed in pain.

That is the way it story of [illegible] began.

Then [illegible] screaming, [illegible] Indians warwhooping, [illegible] playing [illegible] and through it all a [illegible] piloted screaming [illegible] ever heard [illegible].

Just a Record

And then there was a scratching, [illegible] and round, as the record came to an end.

It was the sound effects record for Camp Forrest's Link Trainer, [illegible] the most gruelling test, [illegible] of actual combat, yet devised to drill staff officers in working out their combat problems under harassing conditions.

The Trainer, product of the imaginations of Lt. Col. Allen F. Clark Jr., 80th Division engineering officer, and Maj. James Warner Bellah, division intelligence officer, got its name from the fact that it is used to winnow the [illegible], who may blow up in battle, out of the dependable staff officer. After that, the lunks are run through again and again until nothing short of a mortar shell in their lap can disturb their calm.

Realistic Effect

The trainer is housed in a 20x30 foot dugout. You crawl into the thing through a narrow tunnel. It's pitch dark. Gradually the smell of battle seeps into the dugout—the odor of decomposing flesh.

There are blinding flashes of light — just long enough to disclose shell-mangled "bodies" lying nearby. The hair begins to rise on the backs of the officers' necks but they have been given a tactical problem to work out under these conditions, and they get to it.

The unearthly noises of the sound effects record, and the periodic violent flashes of light, don't make it any easier, but they get it done and reach for a field telephone.

Wind, Too

They draw back in horror. The phones are coated with some kind of slimy red stuff. As they reach again, gas begins to fill the place, and more earth-shattering explosions go off nearby.

All this time a violent wind is blowing. That's good, because it blows the stench of decomposition away. But then it dies down, and the smell seems worse than ever. Then it comes up again, but this time it blows sand and dust, and it rises and falls in force. If it would only blow the same all the time, the officers mutter, it would help a little bit. But it doesn't—it blows harder, and it starts raining to boot.

Just as the situation seems unbearable, the half-hour session ends.

Object: Insanity?

The decaying flesh is the real thing—meat scraps, in pine-lined boxes. The "bodies" are window dummies. The goo on the telephones is concocted out of library paste and red stain. The wind comes from an airplane engine and propellor, with sand, dust and water sprinkled in front of it.

"The idea," Major Bellah told me, "is not so much to expose you to an imitation of real battle conditions, but simply to try to drive you nuts by working on all your senses at once and in a way that keeps you guessing as to what's coming next. The minute you get used to one sound we bring in another. We ran out of battle sounds, so we rang in those Indians and babies screaming.

"As soon as you get used to strong wind, we cut it down and then make it rise and fall. As soon as you get used to blue lights we start flashing red ones."

And you can take it from me, I wouldn't be progressing on this story very fast if that wounded man were screaming in my ear. Especially if the shumba band came in about the end of the paragraph. And that screeching!

Sound Effects

"We got a radio station interested in it," he explained, "and they really went to work with their record library. We put in some ideas of our own too. That screeching sound—do you now how we did that? By crumpling a cigaret package celiophane near the microphone. You wouldn't believe it."

But the Major reserves his biggest grin for the time when you ask him how much the Link Trainer cost.

"Why," he'll tell you, "we saved the taxpayers a lot of money there. The radio station donated the record, and a department store gave us the dummies. Mrs. Clark had studied sculpture and fixed them up to look realistic. Most of the rest of the stuff we salvaged from the scrap heap or borrowed from various units.

"The total cost was only 67 cents for electrical connections, and we saved the taxpayers that money too. We bought the stuff ourselves."

Gasoline "A" Application Total Reaches 6,000 Mark

Approximately 6,000 applications for renewal of "A" gasoline ration books had been received by the Marion County Ration Board up to Tuesday afternoon. Rationing officials have estimated that this number represents but half of the renewals to be applied for. All applications must be in by July 21.

Two parts of the applications asks for the same information, but both must be filled out, officials said. Applicants must list the make of automobile and the serial numbers of the tires on both spaces designated for that purpose.

The ration board is in need of more volunteer workers to handle the applications. Shifts have been arranged for volunteers from 9 a. m. to 12 noon or 1 to 4 p. m. The first new ration books will probably be mailed this week.

JAPANESE BEETLE CHECKUP TO BE MADE

Traps To Be Distributed in Marion by U. S. Bureau.

The U. S. department of agriculture, bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, will again conduct a 30-day check for the presence of Japanese beetles in Marion, John W. Baringer, chief of the state division of plant industry, announced today.

The check this year follows one a year ago in which 30 of the pests were trapped here. Following the test a year ago, a crew of federal workmen spent several days here spraying nearly 60 acres of land in the north and west parts of the city where the beetle finds were made.

The workmen used a spray composed largely of arsenate of lead, which kills beetle larvae but is unharmful to the adult beetle.

The metal traps which will be located here soon in connection with the test are equipped with a small bottle in which is a solution attractive to the beetle. A majority of the traps will be placed in the residential section of town although a large number will be placed in industrial and commercial areas. To be most effective the traps should be placed no closer than 15 feet to a host plant and should also be located in a spot hit by the sun most of the day.

The Japanese beetle is an introduced plant pest. It was first found in 1916 near Riverton, N. J., and now abounds in large numbers throughout the coastal states. It is about one-fourth of an inch long and about half as wide, colored green and brown with small white spots along the back wing tips.

It is a voracious feeder causing great damage to blossoms, fruit and foliage of many different types of plants including apple, peach, cherry, grape, corn, soy beans, elm, linden, rose and hollyhock.

LAND BANK LOAN PROGRAM CONTINUES

Recent congressional action extending the land bank commissioner loans for two more years will be of [illegible] interest to Marion county farmers, H. L. Wenner, secretary-treasurer of the Marion County National Farm Loan Association, [illegible] a record [illegible].

"[illegible] and since and [illegible] boards of Marion county [illegible] in number and granted about $[illegible] loans. Normally [illegible] are on a long-term basis, [illegible] shorter maturities [illegible] that has just been extended by congressional action.

"New loans made by the [illegible] in the last two months numbered 14 and totaled $38,000," Mr. Wenner said.

Mr. Wenner has operated the Marion county office, located at 191 East Center street, since 1917. Prior to that he was secretary-treasurer in Wyandot county. He still makes his home in Upper Sandusky but operates the Marion office as the headquarters for associations in Marion, Wyandot and Crawford counties, maintaining other offices in Upper Sandusky and Bucyrus.

In pointing out the continuation of the land bank commissioner type of loans, Mr. Wenner explained that they may be made as first mortgages where the farm can meet quality as security for a federal land bank loan, or as a second mortgage when the amount needed by the farmer is greater than the amount loanable on the federal land bank first mortgage. Commissioner loans, first made available in 1933, are made for periods of 10 or 20 years at a constant interest rate of five per cent with a reduced interest rate of three and [illegible] payments effective [illegible] June 30, 1944.

It is a little more than half of the [illegible] land bank loans made by the [illegible] association in the last 20 years, and most of the land bank commissioner loans in the past 10 years have been paid in [illegible] and [illegible] payments are ranging well ahead of schedule.

Genuine Affection

... and every one, turn ... United States with a ... that is often akin to ... affection.

In nearly every country I went ... some great dam or ... project, some harbor ... which has been built ... Americans.

People like our works, I found, not only because they help to make life easier and richer, but also because we have shown that American business enterprise does not necessarily lead to attempts at political control.

Dread of Control

I found this dread of foreign control everywhere. The fact that we are not associated with it in many minds has caused people to go much farther in their approval of us than I had dared to imagine.

I was amazed to discover how keenly the world is aware of the fact that we do not seek—anywhere, in any region—to impose our rule upon others or to exact special privileges.

As I see it, the existence of this reservoir of good will is the biggest political fact of our time.

No other western nation has such a reservoir. Ours must be used to unify the peoples of the earth in the human quest for freedom and justice.

Willkie found that persons with whom he talked "all have one common bond, and that is their deep friendship for the United States." Among such leaders with whom he visited was the Shah of Iran, with whom he is eating above. With his back to the camera is U. S. Minister Dreyfuss.

In formulating his suggestions for immediate mechanism for close cooperation between United Nations, Willkie was influenced by contacts he had made throughout the world. Here he is shown listening to a speech being made by Madame Chiang Kai-shek.

It has become banal to say that this war is a revolution, in men's thinking, in their way of living, all over the world.

It is not banal to see that revolution taking place, and that is what I saw. It is exciting and a little frightening.

It is exciting because it is fresh proof of the enormous power within human beings to change their environment, to fight for freedom with an instinctive, awakened confidence that, with freedom they can achieve anything.

No Agreement

It is frightening because the different peoples of the United Nations, let alone their leaders, have by no means reached common agreement as to what they are fighting for, the ideas with which we must arm our fighting men.

For, however important the role of bayonets and guns may have been in the development of mankind, the role of ideas has been vastly more important—and, in the long run, more conclusive.

Historical Times

In historical times, at any rate, men have not often fought merely for the joy of killing each other. They have fought for a purpose. Sometimes that purpose has not been very inspiring. Sometimes it has been quite selfish.

But a war won without a purpose is a war won without victory.

What we must win now, during the war, are the principles. We must know what our line of solution will be.

I live in a constant dread that this war may end before the people of the world have come to a common understanding of what they fight for and what they hope for after the war is over.

Bright Dreams

I was a soldier in the last war and after that war was over, I saw our bright dreams disappear, our stirring slogans become the jests of the cynical, and all because the fighting peoples did not arrive at any common postwar purposes while they fought.

It must be our resolve to see that that does not happen again.

While we fight, we must develop a mechanism of working together that will survive after the fighting is over.

Successful instruments of either national or international government are the result of growth. They cannot be created in a day.

Nor is there much hope of their being created amid the reawakened nationalistic impulses, the self-seeking, the moral degeneration, and the economic and social dislocations that are always incident to a postwar period.

They must be created now under the cementing force of common danger. They must be made workable and smooth-running, under the emery of day-to-day effort in the solution of common problems.

Economic Warfare

It is idle to talk about creating after the war is over a machinery for preventing economic warfare and promoting peace between nations, unless the parts of that machinery have been assembled under the unifying effort and common purpose of seeking to defeat the enemy.

It is a mere dream to talk of full employmnet dependent upon international trade and development after the war, unless now while we fight together we learn to work together in accord, respect, and understanding.

Common Council

What we need is a council today of the United Nations—a common council in which all plan together, not a council of a few, who direct or merely aid others, as they think wise.

We must have a council of grand military strategy on which all nations that are bearing the brunt of the fighting are represented.

We must have a common council to amalgamate the economic stength of the United Nations and to study jointly the possibilities of future economic cooperation.

And most important of all, as United Nations, we must formulate now the principles which will govern our actions as we move step by step to the freeing of the conquered countries.

And we must set up a joint mechinery to deal with the multiple problems that will accompany every forward step of our victorious armies.

Otherwise we will find ourselves moving from one expediency to another, sowing the seeds of future discontents—racial, religious, political—not alone among the people we seek to free, but even among the United Nations themselves.

It is such discontents that have wrecked the hopes of men of good will throughout the years.

CLASS COMPLETES NUTRITION COURSE

Enrollment Invited by Marion County Red Cross.

The local chapter of the American Red Cross recently awarded certificates to 37 junior and senior high school students who have completed the Red Cross standard nutrition course, Mrs. F. J. Hurst, nutrition chairman, has announced. The class was composed of girls of the home economics 3 class at Harding High school, and the instructor of the class, Miss Pauline Stannard, was also the nutrition instructor who taught the course.

Twenty-three of the girls were seniors who graduated last month and 14 members of the class were junior girls who will be seniors next year.

The American Red Cross, the OCD, and the government are urging civilians to help fight the war on the home front. Preservation of health and conservation of food are of parallel importance in waging war behind the lines.

This program presents an opportunity to learn how to choose food which will give a sense of well-being, energy and health to a family. How to buy food and the best methods of preparing and preserving it are taught in the course.

Anyone interested in taking the course is asked to register at the Red Cross office or call Mrs. F. J. Hurst, chapter nutrition chairman, at 5187.

More than 400 Chinese student pilots have come to the U. S. for standard U. S. Army Air Corps training.

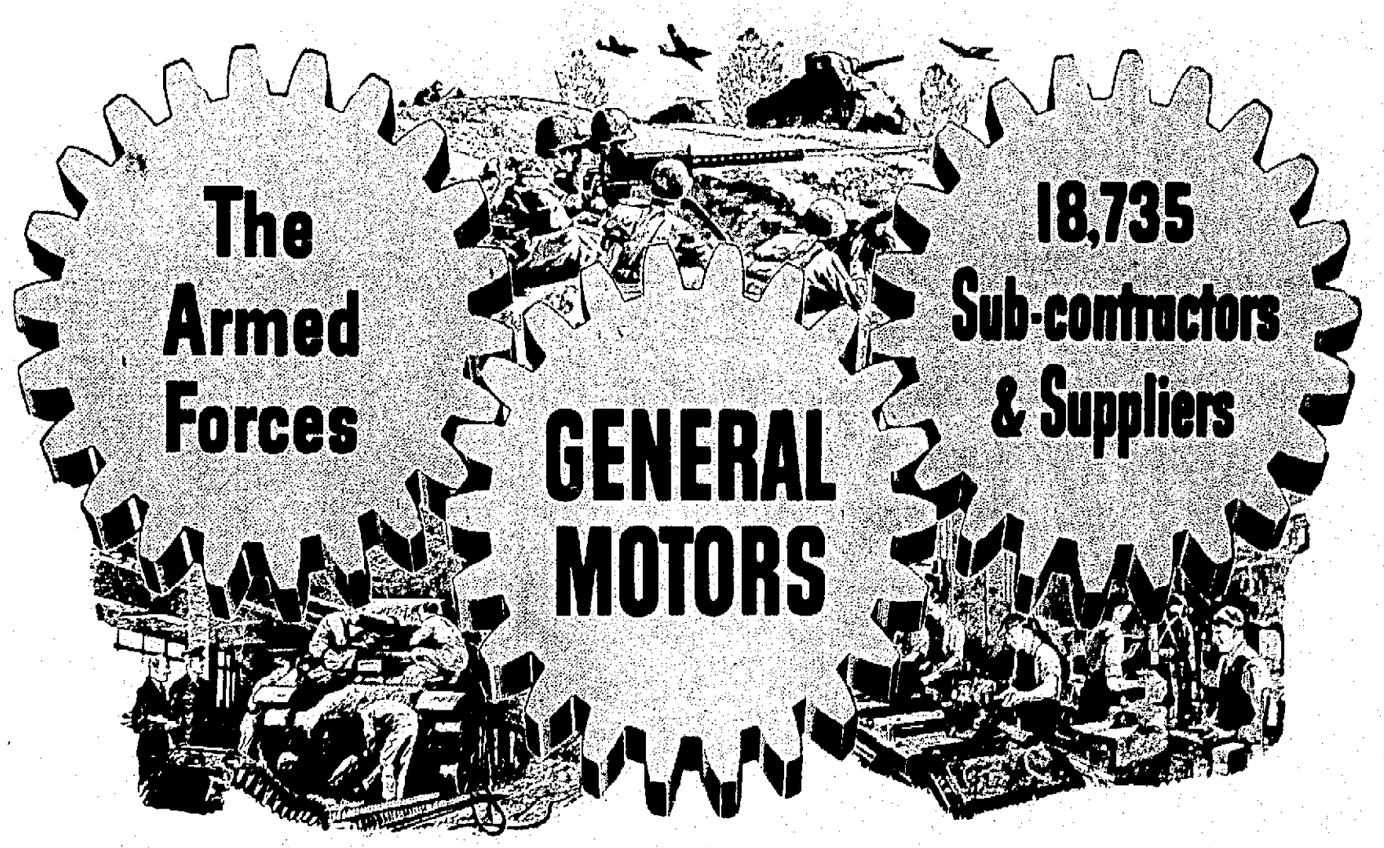
* * * GOOD NEWS FROM THE PRODUCTION FRONT * * *

WORKING TOGETHER



American enterprise and its time-tested production methods are meeting and fulfilling the most imposing demands ever placed upon the industry of any country

IT HAS BEEN our privilege to play an important part in war production—geared with the supply services of the Army and Navy, and with almost 19,000 other producers who have worked with us.

Figures show how successful this "partnership" has been. But they do not show the valuable direction and cooperation we have had from Army and Navy officials. Nor do they indicate the fine spirit shown by our suppliers and sub-contractors.

While 18,735 organizations have shared our big job of war production, there have actually been more than 68,000 such "partnerships" established. For, in many cases, several divisions have gone to the same source, for different types of work.

It is interesting to note that nearly three-fourths of the firms which have furnished us parts for war products, employ less than 500 people. Of these more than half employ 100 or less.

We have chosen our sub-contractors and suppliers carefully, in order to secure those best qualified for the work at hand.

In this we have had one great advantage: "Sub-contracting" is merely a wartime extension of a time-honored General Motors method. We have always dealt with thousands of suppliers of materials and parts.

And so we have known how to proceed in establishing sources dependable as to both quality and efficiency of performance—not only among organizations with which we have formerly worked, but also with thousands of others.

This sub-contracting "know-how"—combined with manufacturing "know-how"—is largely responsible for the consistent quality of the war goods produced. It also accounts for cost reductions totaling hundreds of millions of dollars.

The "partnership" of the Armed Forces, General Motors and the thousands of other businesses involved—some large, some small—is but one example of cooperative wartime endeavor by the automobile industry.

All companies in this mass-production industry have been cooperating with one another—and with organizations not formerly supplying the automotive industry—in order to utilize all knowledge and facilities suited to the task.

The success of this method demonstrates one fact of tremendous importance to all Americans:

American enterprise and its time-tested production methods are meeting and fulfilling the most imposing demands ever placed upon the industry of any country.

FACTS ON GENERAL MOTORS SUB-CONTRACTING

Total number of sub-contractor-supplier connections with GM divisions	68,505
Number of separate organizations from which GM purchased parts, materials, services and supplies	18,735
Size of organizations furnishing us with parts for war production—as indicated by special survey—was as follows:
Firms employing less than 100 people	43%
Firms employing 100 to 500 people	31%
Firms employing more than 500 people	26%

General Motors' policy on sub-contractors and suppliers has resulted in the spread of approximately one-half its war work to outside firms. The figures above are taken from an exhaustive study of sub-contracting prepared in connection with a recent report to the War Department.

The bride, given in marriage by Clifford Bartlett, a close family friend, wore a wedding gown of ivory satin fashioned on princess lines. The sweetheart neckline was accented with pearls and the long, tight fitting sleeves were puffed at the shoulders. Self-covered buttons extended below the waistline in the back and the skirt swept into a long train. Her tulle wedding veil, caught to her head with a corsage of gypsophilia was worn by the bridegroom's sister, Mrs Harold Lindsey at her wedding a few years ago, and she carried a white Bible, showered with satin ribbon and gypsophila carried by the bridegroom's mother at her wedding. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls.

The attendants wore identical gowns of white organza made with full skirts and fitted bodices with short puffed sleeves. Gardenias [illegible]

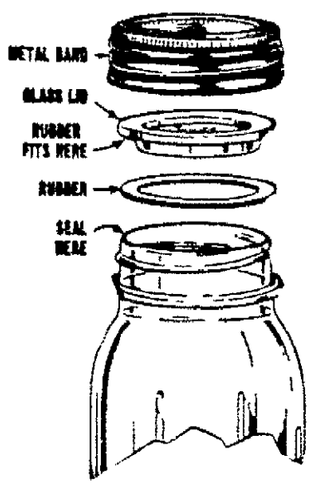
IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.



1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.

2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave ½ inch space in top of jar.

3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.

4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.

5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about ¼ turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is Important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.

6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

Coca-Cola Officially Becomes "Coke" in New Series of Ads

Bottlers of Coca-Cola are using a total of 1,612 newspapers in 1,379 cities for a new advertising campaign launched this week, according to C. R. Harrison, manager of the Marion Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

Mr. Harrison emphasized the universal coverage that is provided by newspapers and stated that more than 900 Coca-Cola bottling plants throughout the country are represented in this nation-wide use of this medium of advertising.

"The part played by Coca-Cola in the daily life of American soldiers and sailors around the world and the fact that 'Coke' is the recognized abbreviation only for Coca-Cola, form the theme of this new program," said Mr. Harrison. "Our armed forces have found Coca-Cola being bottled at many points throughout the Allied Nations. They look upon 'Coke' as one of those little things that remind them of home."

In pointing out that the new advertising features "Coke," the friendly abbreviation of Coca-Cola, Mr. Harrison recalled the famous decision written by the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court to the effect that "Coke" means Coca-Cola.

Following the introduction of the campaign in the nation's press, the theme will be featured in magazines, radio scripts, posters and other media in an extensive advertising schedule.—Paid Advertisement.

Errors Cause Delays in Gas Applications

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 7—Motorists who misaddress mailed applications for a "A" gasoline ration book may find themselves without the use of their automobiles for a few days, the regional office of price administration (OPA) said today.

Some of the several thousand persons who mailed renewal applications to OPA district and national headquarters instead of sending them to local ration boards may not receive their new books until the present one expires July 21, the OPA declared.

Charles H. Schreiber, regional rationing executive, said other errors causing delay in processing of applications were failure of motorists to include tire inspection records and the back cover of the original "A" book.

40 Pass Y Swim Tests

1,016 Lessons Given During Intensive Learn To Swim Campaign for School-Age Groups.

As a result of 1,016 swimming lessons given at the Y. M. C. A. during the four weeks of the Learn To Swim campaign, 40 Marion boys and girls of fifth and sixth grade ages passed final swimming tests and received certificates recognizing their ability. The campaign officially ended Friday after a month of intensive drilling of pupils under the supervision of Marion Mewhorter, Y program director.

Of the total number of lessons, 827 were given in girls' classes, total enrollment of which amounted to 146 for the entire campaign. Lessons to boys' classes whose enrollment was 97, totaled 389. By these figures, an average of 4½ lessons to each girl and four lessons to each boy was obtained.

Ratio of boys and girls passing the final swim test was in proportion to the relative number of lessons given with 24 girls and 16 boys receiving final recognition certificates.

Test Requirements

The test employed by Mewhorter and his class instructors to pass pupils for certificate awards required the student to dive feet first into the deep end of the Y pool and swim the length, which is 35 feet.

Mewhorter said that several boys and girls did not quite qualify for an award because they fell about a foot short of swimming the length of the natatorium. However, he termed the campaign "successful on the whole."

"In comparison with similar campaigns in other cities, ours this year was highly satisfactory," he said. "There were not, what I would call, any definite failures in the campaign."

Miss Mary Gorton, a senior in Harding High school next year, received a special recognition award for volunteer leaders at the close of the campaign Friday. She aided Mewhorter with his girls' swim classes throughout the campaign and, moreover, for the past year, has donated her services to other projects of the Y. Misses Phyllis Ruhl and Virginia Bull also aided as teachers of the girls' classes.

Details of Report

Other data in the final Learn To Swim report by Mewhorter includes: number of boys taught to swim across the pool 29, number of girls 33; boys taught to paddle 13, girls 30, boys taught to float, glide, and kick, 9, girls 32; boys taught to submerge 19, girls 20.

A reunion of all pupils in the 1943 Learn to Swim campaign probably will be held next fall just before school opens, Mewhorter said. A swimming party will feature this proposed reunion.

As you are reading this paper, fellows from our town are fighting in mud and malaria-filled swamps. That isn't a startling new thought is it? You have seen the news reels and you have read the headlines in the paper. You know there is a war going on! But think for a moment what it actually means. If the situation were reversed and if you were lying huddled to the ground praying with clenched teeth that the folks at home, reading the newspapers, hadn't forgotten you. WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1943

1,200 Momentous Days

CONGRESS will have been in continuous session for more than 1,200 days when its members leave Washington, probably this week, for a recess—not an adjournment.

The non-stop record began to pile up at the beginning of 1940, when the 76th congress elected in 1938 convened for its third session.

Its attention was focused on continuing and improving the New Deal. New Dealers and Democrats had heavy majorities in both houses; there still was a working coalition.

War had broken out in Europe, but congress was not unduly disturbed. France had the world's strongest army, and its Maginot line was impregnable. Germany had bitten off more than it could chew. Italy was not to be taken seriously. Japan, which could not defeat China, was a victim of militarism. In England, air raid wardens were getting the horse laugh, and drills to prepare the population for bombings were objected to as a waste of time.

Russia, which had made a strange alliance with Germany, was not to be taken seriously; its army was no good; it could not defeat Finland. The United States, though it had been warned about heavier national defense expenditures, was putting its main faith in its new neutrality act. There was considerable excitement because Great Britain was opening United States mail at Bermuda. When a British cruiser removed German officers and men enroute home by way of Japan and Siberia, the Japanese government called it an "unfriendly act." Parlor conversation turned frequently to the "phony war" in Europe, and every school boy knew the intricacies of the underground fortifications that were to stop the Germans in their tracks until finally they would be licked hands down in a war of attrition they could not withstand.

By the following July the world situation had been turned upside down and inside out by the strength of Adolf Hitler's bid for military supremacy. France, the Low countries, Norway and the British balance of power were gone.

Instinctively, Americans knew they were destined for another war, but through the summer and fall they were too engrossed in the affairs of a national election to think much about it. Mr. Roosevelt was running for a third term, which was unprecedented. Wars happened all the time.

The 77th congress, still with heavy Democratic-New Deal majorities in both houses, convened and remained in continuous session throughout its life. It had the responsibility of performing the legislative function in the preparation and conduct of war. The preoccupation with social legislation and reform that had characterized congress since 1933 vanished. The New Deal ceased to be a legislative responsibility and became the special cause of the fourth branch of government—the bureaucracy.

In November, 1942, when the 78th congress was elected—the first wartime election—the Democratic-New Deal majority vanished. Republicans almost won a majority in the house of representatives. They gained 10 seats in the senate. This is the congress now taking a recess. It is not the first time congressmen are leaving Washington since January, 1940, but it is the first recess that finds congress abreast of its tasks. It is the first recess that could have been an adjournment, if congressional leaders had wanted to wait on the chief executive's orders to reconvene.

No branch of the government has worked harder than congress during the war. While it gets no credit from its perennial critics for doing so, no branch of the government has done more to perpetuate a form of government in which the governing power is distributed among executive, legislative and judicial offices

From Bad to Worse?

Nothing whatever was settled. Congress marched up the hill and marched back down again, so to speak. It refused its approval for a government policy, then refused to back up its disapproval. Subsidies remain in status quo.

Unfortunately, everything else remains in status quo, too, including the fact that back of the subsidies, which are primarily concerned with the welfare of the consumer, the welfare of producers and processors continues so uncertain that there is a breakdown in some fields of food distribution.

The country can withstand the shock of discovering that in the midst of the growing season food distribution is in a mess. This is a psychological crisis, not a dietary crisis. The shortages that have occurred in some lines, such as beef, are not serious as far as mass nutrition is concerned.

The possibility is, however, that in the absence of a comprehensive food program things may move from bad to worse next winter. For the sake of popular confidence in the home front management of the war there needs to be speedy action to furnish what has been lacking so far—a food policy that embodies something more than willy-nilly measures put into effect as often as not to conceal the fact there is no food policy.

News Behind the News

Need Seen To Put Post-War Economic Planning on Practical Basis.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 7 — Full employment has been placed alongside international peace as an equal objective of the British government for the post-war world in an official pronouncement by the chancellor of the exchequer, Kingsley Wood.

No doubt our government also will seek "full employment at all costs" with equal ardor.

But in the full employment discussions, both here and in Britain, the talk is of new sensational artificial methods of achieving this result—a $25,000,000,000 annual federal budget to finance public works, a 36 hour work week (yes, 20) and various other devices.

The groove in which all this conservative and liberal thinking is going is the one we dug for ourselves in the last depression—the line that everything which happened in the previous thousands of years of the world was wrong, that this is the age of the liberation of man in which economic formulas are the solution to all problems, that the former natural laws of both God and nature are henceforth to be repealed by what the economists call "the supremacy of economic man."

Experience in Past

This is strange in view of our recent experiences with economic formulas. Not one has worked among the many we tried in the last 11 years—the gold buying policy to raise prices, the ever-normal granary to provide eternally balanced food production; the public works expenditures; deficit financing; the Keynes plan; the shorter work week, all to restore full employment, but they did not do so.

Some of these steps proved politically popular temporarily, but did not achieve their economic purposes. As economic formulas, they did not do the job.

Yet the post war full employment remedies now being offered propose to go further along this narrow rut in which we have been unsuccessfully plodding for 14 years. Now they talk of nearly tripling the old New Deal peacetime spending budget, and cutting the 40 hour work week in half, with no greater assurances that these new steps would work any better than the old ones.

If any government wants to provide full employment in the future, it first must free itself from these unsuccessful grooves of thought, break out of these reactionary shackles of the mind, and search for sound ways and means that seem likely to do the job.

Formula for Doing Job

If we are to have a managed government economy, it must be managed as an economy, not as a political machine for getting group votes. Political expedients don't work.

What makes full employment? Good business. Nothing else ever made it in a democracy.

What makes good business? The expectation of the people that they can make a profit. No other formula in a democracy ever made people spend and invest, buy and sell.

Government, then, must direct their search for full employment into one line—maintenance of the profit incentive. If they want formulas, they must seek new ones to keep an expectation of profits in the public mind.

The line on which they are now going lies clearly in the opposite direction. A $25,000,000,000 budget would require such heavy taxation upon the people as to make their wages (profits) worth less and be so one-sided in business as to discourage the expectation of profits.

In fact, the higher you raise taxes, the less chance there is of profit, good business and full employment. In following this line, you defeat your own objectives.

20-Hour Week

A 20-hour work week? That is "share-the-work," not full employment.

Does this suggestion search in the right direction when you consider the fall of France, due to her inability to get production on the 35 and 40-hour week?

Are we, in this war, winning on the production front by reducing the work week, or are we not proving conclusively that full production (with full employment) requires a reasonable work week?

A 20-hour work week would cut salaries in half, leaving that much less to spend, that much less to produce, that much less to buy. It would be a depressant to full employment.

Clearly it appears to me our thinkers are on the wrong beam. Let them look in the opposite direction and devise means of maintaining a constant, steady "expectation of profits" and that is all they will have to do.

A Warning Voice

Sen. Thomas Tells Us Not To Underrate Japs.

SENATOR E. D. THOMAS

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, July 7—Some military commentators recently have been prefacing their remarks with "Now that we have the Japanese stymied in the Pacific—"

If there ever was a voice crying in the wilderness that such is not the case, it is the voice of Sen. Elbert Duncan Thomas, Democrat from Utah.

First, let me tell you about Senator Thomas. There are three "Thomases" in the senate, but they shouldn't be confused. Elbert D. Thomas started life in Salt Lake City 60 years ago, the Mormon son of Mormon parents. He followed family tradition by becoming a Mormon missionary.

His mission work took him to Japan and later to China. His colleagues will readily admit that there isn't one of them who knows more about the Orient than Elbert Thomas. He was intimately acquainted with Admiral Togo and General Nogi.

"In my study and teaching of history," he says, "I start and end with the Orient. That puts me out of harmony with most of the history departments of American institutions, because most of our history teaching deals with western Europe and America. The rest of the world we let go hang, and we today are suffering the consequences."

That may sound a little pedantic, but when it comes from a man held in such esteem by his colleagues that he's chairman of the senate education and labor committee and a member of the committees on foreign relations, military affairs, mines and mining, and pensions, you can be sure it's not.

Senator Thomas is not one of the "all-out" critics of postponement of our war against the Japs. Although he is convinced that postponement of concentrated activity in that theater will prolong the war at least a year or two, he sees in our present strategy the possibility of saving many lives.

Evidence in Record

The records of Guadalcanal, New Guinea and Attu bear him out. These defensive offensives against Japanese outposts have been extravagant in dead, wounded, ill and captured. That they have cost the Japanese more dead than our own and Allied troops is little compensation.

Four things should be borne in mind: (1) The Japs are a desperate people, because they have made a desperate gamble to rule Asia or to go back to the days of Tokugawa Shogunate and isolate themselves again.

(2) Except for the subjugation of inner China and the capture of an eastern anchor in New Caledonia or Hawaii, they already have accomplished all they set out to do in a military way, and now have only to fight a defensive war.

(3) Their manpower now numbers in the hundreds of millions and their resources in strategic materials are almost limitless.

(4) Through propaganda, Asiatic blood ties and an understanding of the Oriental mind, the Japs are well on their way right now to establish a far greater colonial empire than the occidental nations ever dreamed of.

Sen. Thomas was asked by newsmen in November, 1941, why he was trying so hard to avert war with the Japs when many authorities said we could wipe them out in three weeks.

The senator answered "I do not want war in the Pacific to come because it would be a terrible thing. If it does come we will be shocked as we never have been shocked in our whole national history."

Advance Knowledge

Thomas knew then what a great many of us are only learning today and what our own military and naval leaders have come to realize through bitter experience: that the Japs had planned well to use their comparatively meager reserves of war stores and equipment in a blitzkrieg to gain their main objectives and, once having gained them, to consolidate the whole of the southwest Pacific, north of Australia, and the whole of eastern Asia from Manchukuo to Singapore to Burma in an Asiatic alliance against the white races.

With the possible exception of the Dutch and the United States (whose only important possession in that area was the Philippines), the Japs already have done more to bring the millions of that vast area over to their side than the Occidental nations did in the many decades that they had ruled there.

The senator thinks the Filipinos will remain loyal, in spite of the fact that a puppet government is reportedly functioning well in all but the matter of adequate food under Japanese rule.

Naturally, all he has to go on is the reports now leaking out of these Japanese-conquered islands and lands, but he doesn't think that a lost Frenchman in Indo-China or a lost Britisher in the wilds of Burma or the Malay states, would find many friends among the natives.

Apparently the Japs have played well their propaganda of Asia for the Asiatics and have learned far better than the Germans that subjugated nations can be brought to thumb through a certain amount of self-government faster than by slavery.

The senator is not one to sneer at the ability of the Japs as colonists. If they haven't been able to convince many Japanese to settle in Manchuria, he points out, they have attracted 25,000,000 Chinese to that country since they took over and less than 1,000,000 of them have returned to China proper since those nations went to war.

"There will never to be a collapse in the Far East now," says Senator Thomas, "for lack of food, manpower or raw materials."

If those were all the things necessary to victory, the Nips already have them in their palms. It's good that even Senator Thomas thinks ultimately they will need more than that.

GOOD NEWS FROM "DOWN UNDER"

21 Million Meals A Day

Army Quartermaster Service Handles Big Job.

By JOHN NAGEL
International News Service Correspondent

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 7—The biggest feeding job in American history—providing some 21,000,000 meals daily for hungry American soldiers both at home and abroad—rests today in the capable hands of Major General E. B. Gregory, Quartermaster General of the United States Army, and a competent staff of assistants.

It is his job to see that every soldier in the United States Army is provided with nutritious food to keep him in tip-top fighting shape, and plenty of it.

The mechanics of providing 21,000,000 meals a day are relatively simple—on paper. But when hundreds of thousands of eaters are scattered to the four corners of the globe, then that is another matter.

Must Avoid Wastage

First of all the Quartermaster Corps must determine just how much food is needed so that there will be plenty of everything but a wastage of nothing. Outstanding dietitians and general food experts do that. Then it must be purchased and this is done through 35 special marketing centers in all parts of the country and huge procurement depots in Jersey City, Chicago, and Oakland, Cal., plus subsidiary depots in other sections of the country.

It must then be distributed to the different camps throughout the nation and also sent to American troops overseas in operation with the Transportation Corps.

Trains Bakers, Cooks

Finally it must be cooked, but the Quartermaster Corps does not do that, although it does train the Army's bakers and cooks in some 89 schools in all parts of the continental United States and overseas.

The average American soldier eats a little more than five pounds of food a day. Seven million of them will eat close to 37,000,000 pounds of food a day, and will be back for the same amount the next day, and the next, and so on, except that as the days progress the amount gets larger because the army is bigger.

The problem of shipping food to American soldiers overseas with a minimum drain on the overtaxed shipping facilities of the United Nations was one of the Quartermaster Corps' most difficult problems. It solved this difficulty by developing concentrated foods, devising new packaging processes and shipping methods which are saving millions of cubic feet of space annually in the Allied merchant ships.

Reduced to the simplest common denominator, the entire Army feeding program revolves around the individual meal. If that meal, which is only one of the millions served daily, is not palatable, wholesome, nutritious and satisfying then the program is a failure.

Develop Master Menu

To guard against such failure, Quartermaster Corps food experts developed the Master Menu, which is the formula upon which meals for every soldier in the Army are prepared. The Master Menu is prepared well in advance each month and sent out to the individual Service Commands to guide all Army cooks and mess officers in the preparation of meals.

A complete menu is drawn up for each meal each day, together with a complete breakdown of all food items and amounts necessary for feeding 100 men. Thus an Army cook knows exactly how much food of all kinds to requisition in order to feed the men in his company.

Field Rations Good

Troops in the actual theatre of operations may not be able to eat a regular meal, and if so they subsist on the Army's famous new packaged field rations. These are the "C," and "K," the "5-in-1," the "4-in-1" or one of the others which provide complete, properly balanced meals.

In any event they are properly fed and although the field rations are not as heavy and not as complete as those served in mess halls, they nevertheless provide the best combat rations any Army has ever enjoyed.

The Turps

Joe and Ethel Are Together Again Thanks to Accident Occuring in War Down in North Africa.

By DAMON RUNYON

DEAR SIR Well I guess you will be surprised to get a letter from me back in God country because the last time you heard from me I was in North Africa and you can have Now here I am in the good old United States and I am really tickled even if I am still under a little bit and in the hospital and may be limp for quite a while after I get out.

They are going to let me go home to Brooklyn pretty soon to rest and my wife Ethel is coming east from California to meet me and we will be together once more and that will be fine for me point as I do not have to go back to the war until I am all well and can get around without a limp.

I talked to my wife Ethel over the long distance yesterday and as soon as I ses hello and ses hello Joe, I wish you were here to punch fresh fellow on the nose for me at the Lockheed plant where I am working. I am a riveter Joe. I love it fine. I promised him you would punch him on the nose as soon as you get back from the war Joe is it hot or cold there in North Africa" I had an argument with a guy yesterday about it.

I SES to Ethel. It was both hot and cold where I is there I mean sometimes it is hot and sometimes it is cold. She ses well, then we die both right because I ses it was hot and Vasey ses it was cold. Being a riveter is hard work Joe but the pay is good and I wish you could come here when you get back from North Africa and see what a nice job I am doing. Then you could punch that fellow's nose for me too.

I ses Ethel I am not in North Africa. I am in Virginia and she ses why that's near Washington, have they moved the war there? I ses of course not. I ses I am in a hospital here because I got hurt a little in North Africa and they sent me back to the United States to get well. I have not got enough strength left to tip a straw hat let alone punch somebody's nose and another thing this call is costing plenty of dough and we haven't got too much time.

Ethel ses o Joe are you hurt very bad and whereabouts? Be sure and drink plenty of milk to get your strength back and I'll come there to you right away and nurse you. I ses never mind doing that Ethel I remember how you nursed your Uncle Ben when he had the broken leg and you sat down on it by accident. I ses they are going to let me go home to Brooklyn and I'll meet you there and we will have fun.

SHE ses I'll quit my job right away and see about my railroad ticket. Joe you will never know how much I have missed you. I ses same here sweets and you can say it again. There has never been a minute since I have been away that I have not been thinking of you and when I got wounded the only thing that bothered me was that something might happen and I wouldn't get to see you again.

She ses why Joe Turp you never told me you got wounded. You just ses you was hurt a little as if it was nothing at all. Of course you couldn't punch that fresh fellow's nose for me now. Joe I'm worried to death about you. I ses Ethel the worry is all over. I am fine only don't be surprised if you see me with a small gimp when I walk for awhile. She ses I'll get one of my pop's canes for you and just then the operator come in and ses your time is up and Ethel ses Miss I am talking to my husband who was terribly wounded at the war.

I ses baby I wasn't terribly wounded at all and I'll write and tell you all about it tomorrow so goodbye and I love you and Ethel ses goodbye Joe. I love you too but I didn't sit down on my Uncle Ben's broken leg that time I was nursing him. I dropped the electric iron on it. Don't you remember?

Yours truly,
Joe Turp.

Twelve Trillion What?

(From The Baltimore Evening Sun)

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes has been busy with a scratch pad and pencil figuring the nation's total assets. He comes to the conclusion that if this country, with its people, its land, its industries and natural resources, were to go under the hammer it should bring 12 trillion, 23 billion dollars.

This impressive total Mr. Ickes then places against our national debt of $140,304,018,563 to indicate how insignificant that debt is, compared with our total wealth. Mr. Ickes' object is obviously to belittle the size of our debt.

In thus putting a price on the United States Mr. Ickes seems oblivious of the immensity of the task he has set himself. Far easier is that of computing the national yearly income. The figures look very clear and precise when they appear in the almanacs, yet no economist would claim that they represent what our national income actually is. There are all sorts of chances for miscalculations and duplications. The sole virtue of these estimates of the country's annual income lies in the fact that each year they are made according to the same rules and so give us a rough idea of increases and decreases.

Mr. Ickes expresses our total wealth in terms of dollars, but he ignores the fact that the dollar itself is an uncertain quantity. By a mere stroke of the pen altering the value of the dollar Mr. Ickes' 12 trillions could be made to look like something very different. Presumably the dollar he is speaking about is the dollar President Roosevelt devalued in 1934, proclaiming $35 as being equal to an ounce of gold as against the $20.67 that previously had been equal to an ounce. That devalued the dollar by 70 per cent.

But suppose we should return to the rate of $20.67 to the ounce, thus increasing the value of the dollar by 40 per cent. Then according to Mr. Ickes, our national wealth expressed in terms of the new dollar would be not 12 trillion dollars but only a little over seven trillion.

Mr. Ickes' findings are not very impressive and of little practical use aside from making an article for a magazine and giving a false impression about the national debt.

It is not the policy of the United States and British governments that their armies shall be used to impose upon France any particular military leader, but rather to make sure that the will of the masses of the French people, expressed under conditions of freedom, shall decide upon the future government of their country.—Winston Churchill.

Chiang's Faith In Victory Over Japs Cheering To Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's declaration of faith in allied victory over Japan—the outside limit for which he daringly sets at two years—is pleasing to read on this sixth anniversary of the start of the Chino-Jap conflict, especially coming as it does from one of the greatest leaders of our time.

However, this statement would be dangerously incomplete without the general's accompanying caution to his people that the "present marks the beginning of the greatest trials." The allies have before them "the hardest stretch of the road to victory."

As matter of fact, while such encouragement is legitimate for the heavily burdened Chinese people, it's doubtful whether it is particularly beneficial for some of China's allies. It's likely to inspire over-confidence, as witness the complacence which has developed in some parts of the United States since the allied victory in Tunisia.

We have an echo of this self-satisfaction, I believe, in WPB Chairman Donald Nelson's statement of declines in the output of ground ordnance, miscellaneous munitions and merchant vessels, which he characterizes as a "very serious matter." Only the other day Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, commanding general of the Army supply forces, reported in the magazine Mill and Factory a shocking shortage of weapons and materiel for the Army. He attributed this in part to over-confidence due to favorable news from the battle front.

Questions Judgment

This column has maintained that the American public could stand good news without becoming complacent. Passage of time, however, causes one to wonder whether this judgment is correct. Maybe the propaganda experts who insist that it's necessary to feed the people bad news in order to keep them in fighting mood aren't so far wrong, abhorrent as the idea must be to most folk.

Anyway, as regards China we are telling nothing less than the cold truth when we point out that her main asset at this moment is the magnificent spirit of her people who for six years have endured suffering which would have broken many nations. This will to win, plus vast reaches of territory to swap with the invaders for time, has enabled them to hold out.

We must recognize that China's ability to assume major offensive operations, or even withstand enemy attacks, depends on the assistance which America and the other allies can give her. General Chiang has comparatively few resources at his disposal, either to make war or to sustain anything like normal living conditions in the unoccupied regions.

There's no reason to doubt Chiang's view that his great country will hold out and participate with the other allies in victory. At the same time we shall be starry-eyed indeed if we don't see that he must be banking on allied aid to turn the trick.

Question for China

The thing the United Nations have to worry about is whether they can make their help effective soon enough to save China from collapse.

Generalissimo Chiang today issued an appeal to the United Nations to strike in force at Japan immediately because he feels this is the opportune moment "to reap great results" in reducing the time of final victory. He declares Nippon now "is at her weakest as her ready resources are approaching a point of exhaustion."

Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, Chinese war minister, also estimates that Japan has suffered 3,000,000 casualties and says she is facing an acute manpower shortage. He further asserts that Nippon is far weaker in sea strength, has not more than 3,000 first line warplanes asd has been surpassed by the allies in the air, and has difficult materiel and food problems.

As though to emphasize the statements of the great Chiang and his war minister, we get the report of another American naval triumph over the Japs in the Solomons. Meager details indicate that, as Secretary of the Navy Knox puts it, "the Japs have taken another damned good licking." Apparently we have torn a further great hole in the fleet which represents much of Japan's strength in the Pacific.

All this is encouraging to the allies, but the fact remains that we have before us a titantic job of blasting the Japs out of their hold on China and other occupied countries. Time is of vast importance.

The line is so finely drawn that anything which causes great delay in the execution of our plans might produce a disaster. Complacency here at home might easily do it.

SENATE DOES ABOUT-FACE ON SUBSIDIES

Hope of Recess Today Fades in Jangle Over Funds for Price Roll-Back.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7—In a sudden and dramatic turnabout, the senate rose up to do battle with the administration again today over the government's plan to roll back retail food prices by paying subsidies to processors.

Chances of starting a mid-summer recess by nightfall faded hourly as weary lawmakers of both houses went into a huddle over a bill continuing the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation but blocking the subsidy program.

The conferees' task was to reconcile diametrically opposite proposals in the senate version and the house-approved bill which lifted all subsidy-rollback restrictions objected to by the administration.

Climax of About-Face

Climaxing a seldom-seen demonstration of about-facing, senate opponents of the rollback voted late yesterday, over the loud lamentations of administration lieutenants, for subsidy restrictions similar to those which drew a vigorous veto from President Roosevelt only last Friday.

The bill as it went to conference would continue CCC until Jan. 1, 1944, and increase its lending authority from $2,850,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 but that was virtually a side issue.

Gone were administration-sanctioned provisions which would have authorized a six-months rollback expenditure up to $525,000,000 and clamped ceilings on existing subsidy payments to stimulate production of essential crops, import essential commodities, increase output of war minerals and compensate for war transportation losses.

The bill now would invalidate the present subsidy-rollback on retail prices of meats and butter.

Lawmakers disagreed generally on what final form it would take after the house-senate conference committee finished with it. But most agreed on one thing: that if it retains the anti-subsidy provisions the President will veto it again.

Senator Danaher (R-Conn) contended, however, that since a veto would act to kill CCC and its important lending activities for crop production and farm transportation, the President "surely wouldn't want to do that with congress in recess."

Here Is Play-by-Play

This was the senate's up-and-down-hill route to the anti-subsidy vote:

1. Voted 32 to 31 for a provision limiting CCC expenditures for the subsidy rollback to $175,000,000 for the next six months and up to $350,000,000 for the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

2. Reconsidered the vote, 33 to 32, on motion of Senator Shipstead (R-Minn).

3. Voted 31 to 33 to reject the restricted subsidy authorization.

4. Rejected, 29 to 36, the bill extending the life of CCC.

5. Defeated a motion by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) to table a motion by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to reconsider the vote rejecting the CCC bill.

6. Repudiated step number four by voice vote on appeal of Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) and thus brought the bill up for reconsideration again.

7. Approved 36 to 28 an amendment to the CCC-continuing bill to prohibit any government agency from paying subsidies to push down retail prices.

8. Approved by voice vote the measure to keep CCC alive until Jan. 1, 1944, with the anti-rollback provision included in the bill.

A subsidy prohibition restricted only to CCC was offered by Danaher but was enlarged to include all government agencies in an amendment by Senator Tydings (D-Md) who appealed for defiance of a presidential veto.

Cooperating in the month-long sales campaign are Marion merchants, the city's four theaters and carriers to The Star. Store clerks, theater employes and the carrier salesmen who are part of the nation-wide "little merchant" force have been asked to redouble their efforts to sell stamps this month.

Also lending a hand in starting the campaign are the Boy Scouts who have almost completed their promotional phase of the drive. The Scouts, under the direction of Harding Area Executive Hugh Hay, have completed the distribution of posters and other promotional material to theaters and business establishments in the outlying districts as well as in the downtown area.

Erie Railroad Worker Dies at Hospital in Columbus.

Guy O. Lester, 60, of 318 Carner avenue died at 8:15 a. m. today in Grant hospital in Columbus after an illness of six weeks. He had been in the hospital for five weeks.

An Erie railroad employe for 37 years, he worked steadily until his illness six weeks ago. He was a yard conductor.

Born in Ada to Mr. and Mrs. Joel Lester March 13, 1883, he had lived in and around Marion since he was a child. He was a member of the Christian Science church and Whitney Lodge, No. 846, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

FOOD PRICES

grocers had been paying wholesale for various foods. To this they added a mark-up to allow the grocer a profit, and thus arrived at the new ceiling prices.

The new prices are known as "community ceiling prices" because separate price lists are being set up for various groups of counties all over the nation, Mr. Zachman said. The group of counties in the "community" with Marion are Morrow, Logan and Knox. Identical prices will prevail in all of these counties, but the prices in this area may vary from those in Columbus or other cities.

Although hundreds of brand names are listed in the new price schedule, some brands sold in the area are missing. When asked about this, Mr. Zachman explained that in those cases the grocer was to charge a price that would cover his cost to the wholesaler plus a margin of profit approved by OPA. However, if the grocer's brands are included on the "dollar and cents" list, he must follow the ceiling price on the list rather than compute his own costs and margin of profit.

Grocers are to be required to post the new prices in their stores. The list of prices makes a small book—and one of the books is to be hung in each store so that customers may refer to it easily if they doubt the grocer is abiding by OPA ceilings.

Effective Monday

The prices to became effective next Monday will not be made public until the latter part of this week. They cover a wide range of food products, but do not include meat. The meat price problem, one which is causing more difficulty amon gfood dealers in this part of the nation than any other single item, is to be dealt with separately.

When a customer refers to the new OPA price list, she will find four prices listed after each item of food. The separate prices are for the following classes of stores: (1) independent retail outlets with an annual gross sales volume of less than $50,000 (a classification that will include many stores in Marion), (2) independent retail outlets with an annual gross sales volume of $50,000 to $250,000 (also includes many stores in Marion), (3) retail outlets, other than independent retail stores, with an annual gross sales volume of less than $250,000 (only four or five in Marion), and (4) any retail outlets with an annual gross sales volume of $250,000 or more (few of these in Marion). In most cases, the variation among these classes of stores is only a penny or two, but in some items the price difference is several cents.

ARMS OUTPUT DROP REPORTED BY NELSON

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7—Production of planes and naval vessels reached new highs in May, the war production board's monthly report showed today, but the over-all output of munitions remained unchanged from April.

WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson's report noted declines in ground ordnance, miscellaneous munitions and merchant vessels, which he described as a "very serious matter." The decline in merchant vessels was based on the value of work put in place in shipyards, however, and not on the basis of actual deliveries, which in May were the highest so far with nearly 1,500,000 deadweight tons.

Of the four major programs, merchant ships led in the first six months of the year, with 41 per cent of the 1943 goal achieved. Army ordnance and the output of naval vessels and equipment were estimated at 40 per cent of the 1943 goals, and aircraft 35 per cent.

Nelson called for the setting aside of personal and group interests "in the interests of all of us as much as it is humanly possible for we are on the verge of one of the greatest trials of our national history."

The May production boxscore, as compared with April:

Total munitions, unchanged; aircraft and aircraft equipment, up 3 per cent; ground ordnance, down 3 per cent; Navy and Army vessels (value put in place, up 2 per cent; merchant vessels (value put in place), down 4 per cent; miscellaneous munitions, down 7 per cent.

Yanks Zoom Back To 3-Game Margin

Best Advice To Fans Is Not To Worry About McCarthymen.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Next to trying to find a good steer, the biggest waste of time a baseball fan can indulge in is worrying about the New York Yankees.

The American league champions went west a week ago and lost four games in a row. They nearly skidded out of first place and they caused some nasty comments to the effect that maybe the Mc-Carthymen weren't pennant men after all.

By way of proving that they were only fooling, the champs won three games in the last two nights [illegible] and suddenly zoomed back to a three-game lead. They whacked out a 5-4 decision over the St. Louis Browns last night to give Marius Russo, the sore-armed southpaw, his first victory of the season.

The Yankees return to control of the league lead has been helped by the slump of the second place Washington Senators, who dropped a 16-inning 4-3 game to the Detroit Tigers yesterday.

After tying the score at two-all on Bob Johnson's homer in the fourth, the Senators battled 11 scoreless innings and took the lead with a run in the top half of the 16th. Then they gave the game away in the Tigers' turn at bat as Gerry Priddy let in one run on an error and relief pitcher Ray Scarborough forced in the other with two walks. Milo Candini escaped the defeat, being removed for a pinch-hitter in the ninth.

Lefty Al Smith of the Cleveland Indians shut out the Philadelphia Athletics 2-0 on four hits and the St. Louis Cardinals boosted their National league lead back to four games by blanking the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 on three-hit hurling by Harry Gumbert.

Meanwhile the Brooklyn Dodgers were humbled 9-4 by the Chicago Cubs, who acquired their first triumph of the year in Ebbets Field. In the day's only other game the Boston Braves nosed out the Cincinnati Reds 1-0.

REDS STILL WITHOUT VICTORY IN BOSTON

Braves Take 1 to 0 Game; Doubleheader Today.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, July 7 — Still wondering what it's like to win a ball game in Boston during the current season, the Cincinnati Reds take to the field against the Braves for a doubleheader today.

On their first visit to Beantown in mid-May the Reds lost a series of three. Yesterday they dropped a nip and tuck pitchers' battle 1 to 0.

Lanky Al Javery, Boston right-hander, who was shelled from the mound last Saturday in the first round against the Pittsburgh Pirates, turned in an all around performance in whitewashing the Reds and besting Ray Starr.

Besides scattering six hits, he singled in the only run of the game in the second after Clyde Klutiz doubled.

Never known as a "running team," the Reds blew their only two chances to score by over ambitious baserunning. Eddie Miller was thrown out at home in the fourth inning attempting to score from first base on Steve Mesner's double over short.

Gee Walker, who is unpredictable on the baselines, was tagged at third when he tried to take two bases on Frank McCormick's slow roller to Johnny McCarthy in the eighth.

Manager Bill McKechnie will start Bucky Walters and Elmer Riddle in today's contests. Nate Andrews and Manuel Salvo will hurl for the Braves.

FASTEST 2-YEAR-OLD PACERS AT RANDALL

Six Entered for Feature Event Today.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 7 — Six of the nation's fastest-stepping two-year-old pacers will line up today in the $2,625 National stake, feature event at North Randall's Grand Circuit track.

Included in the field is Attorney, winner of the American pacing stake last Friday. The favorite paced to victory in second and third heats to take the American, first major victory for owner C. H. Wilkinson, Logansport, Ind.

Sep Palin will be in the sulky behind Attorney today, vying with Goodbye and Probationer, other strong contenders.

In yesterday's feature attraction, the $1,995 Geers stake to three-year-old pacers, Adios stepped a 2:03¼ first mile to fashion a straight-heat victory. The first heat was the fastest mile paced this year.

Princess Mite, Volomite-sired trotter owned by C. C. Adelman, of Mount Vernon, O., won in straight heats in the Senator farm stake, and paid $85 for $2 at the mutuels for the first whirl.

Joe Kuhel, the White Sox's first sacker, has been holding down an initial sack in organized baseball for 19 years.

Association Attendance Shows Increase This Year

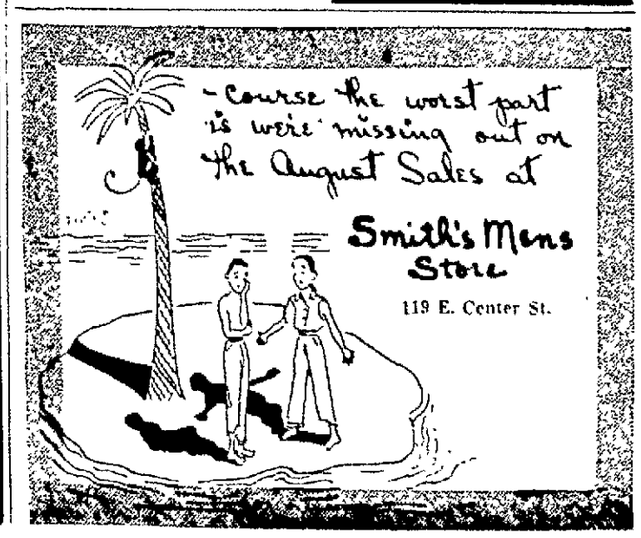
By The Associated Press

President George Trautman says the American association's attendance is running 10 to 11 per cent above that of last year. And the individual teams are doing their bit, as ever, to stir up interest. Here it is time to start the second half of the season and the sixth-place team is only eight games behind the league leaders.

All action shifts to the east today. Milwaukee holds a two-game freshly-won advantage over Indianapolis, Columbus is only 5½ games behind after splitting a twin bill with Toledo last night, Minneapolis is 6½ games back and St. Paul trails by seven.

Toledo's Mud Hens beat the Columbus Red Birds in last night's first game, 2 to 0, but the Red Birds won the second 4 to 3 in 13 innings.

Milwaukee played the Great Lakes Naval Training Station team to a 1-1 tie in a game called after 10 innings to permit the Brewers to catch a train.



AL SMITH RETURNS CLEVELAND INDIANS TO VICTORY COLUMN

Tribe Hurler Allows Only Four Hits; A's Today, Then Senators.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 7 — Back in the victory column after Al Smith's four-hit night performance that whipped the Philadelphia Athletics last night, the Cleveland Indians play the A's again today and then the Washington's second-place Senators for four games.

Last night's game was a single-inning affair as far as the payoff was concerned, the Indians scoring two runs in the last of the eighth — their first two earned runs in 26 innings against the last place Athletics.

Smith allowed only three singles and a double with no two hits in the same inning. Jo-Jo White got the two-bagger, matching Ken Keltner's only other extra base hit of the game.

The traditional inability of the Indians to score from scoring position was continued by a weird double play that was called by the umpiring staff only after Connie Mack dug into the rule book.

In the first inning Oris Hockett singled, Lou Boudreau walked, and both advanced on a sacrifice. Keltner bounded to pitcher Arntzen and Hockett was caught in a rundown between third and home, Keltner moving to second and Boudreau to third.

Hockett then took flight toward open country, chased by Philadelphia Catcher Bob Swift and the baseball. Swift paused to tag Boudreau standing on third base and then caught Hockett, the umpires ruling both men out because Hockett was tagged off base and Boudreau had no right there in the first place.

Threshers Chalk Up 9 to 0 Victory Over Waldo Team

Huber's Threshers, although [illegible] 9 to 0 hooking last night at the Waldo Dodgers that not [illegible] as a league win, are [illegible] proud and undisputed possession of first place in the industrial loop at the end of the first round of 1943 regular season play. Universal Cooler's one [illegible] game behind in second spot.

Each industrial team has played four games in league competition during the first half of the season. They will play the same number for the second and final round, which is scheduled to start tomorrow night.

Huber beat the Dodgers last night in a no-count inter-industrial and Commercial league contest at McKinley park. Harold "Pat" Millisor, best pitcher in the loop on the basis of his seasonal record, hurled the number one league pitching performance of the year as he set the air-fanning Waldoans down with only one hit. General Excavator's Diggers whipped the Commercial Steelers 10 to 2 at Lincoln park last night in an Industrial circuit game to stretch their third place margin over the Steelers to one game.

Millisor had a no hitter in sight going into the first half of the sixth inning. However, John Ward, first Dodger up in that stanza, timed one of Millisor's pitches neatly and slapped out a sharp single. Outside of this safety, no other Waldo batter was able to reach first against Huber by virtue of a clean hit. Millisor issued five passes and struck out eight Dodger stickers. Jim Ward, Waldo flinger, fanned two Hubernites and gave up two walks.

Homer for Huber

Armbruster blasted a homer for Huber in the second inning with two men on base. Ted Anderson, however, captured hitting honors with three hits out of three official times up.

Six tallies and ten hits were made by Huber in the first two innings with both the runs and bingles being evenly divided between the two stanzas.

Jess Granlee, General Excavator first baseman, led his team to its decisive triumph over Commercial by getting two hits outs of two trips to the plate. Bill Barber, Digger shortstop, closely seconded Granlee with two for three.

Best inning for either team was the fifth in which five runs were marked up on the Excavator side of the ledger. The Digger woodsmen smacked four hits in this frame. This total together with a walk and an error by a rattled Commercial fielder played the major roles in racking up the quintet of runs.

Epworth's Methodists, who won their sixth straight tilt of the season Monday night are out of reach of all Sachem league teams as the season for that circuit [illegible] round into the second half. Epworth's nine games ahead of the second place St. Mary team.

End of Season

Regular season for Sunday school teams is scheduled to end August 16 while Industrial-Commercial teams will probably call it quits August 19. A tournament in place of the usual Little World Series will be held at that time, according to plans of the city softball commission.

Mr. Galbreath re... that when rent control was ... into effect, realtors of ... nation cooperated with OPA ... per cent in the spirit of trying ... do a job for the war effort but that since that time, bureaucratic control over this program in Washington had become intolerable. He said the hearings of the Smith committee of the house of representatives had brought out flagrant abuses of the rent control program. He predicted that property owners of the country would get some relief once the housing committee reported their findings to congress.

He told Marion realtors they must take part in the post-war building and housing program throughout the nation and said there would be a great opportunity for realtors in their communities in the post-war program. He estimated that by 1945 over 50 per cent of the 45,000,000 living units in this country would 50 years old or older and said that over 6,000,000 of those units are beyond rehabilitation and must be replaced by new housing units. A building program will be one of the quickest and surest ways to solve the unemployment which will follow the confusion of this war, he declared. The construction industry and all of its associates should put 5,000,000 people to work in rebuilding and rehousing the blighted areas in this country, he estimated.

Mr. Galbreath concluded his talk by saying that while the war is a terrible catastrophe, it is only a passing incident in the history of the world but home ownership, the bulwark of a great democracy, would have its influence upon the type of America in which we are going to live in the future.

TEACHERS

teachers were receiving salaries below those listed in the board's program. This number has been reduced to 31, school records show.

SERVICE CLUBS HEAR TALK BY DR. SAWYER

Patriotic Address Given to Rotarians and Lions

A review of important events in history with July 4 as the basic date was given by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer in an address to members of the Marion Rotary and Lions clubs at Hotel Harding, yesterday. It was the weekly meeting day of Rotary and the Lions were guests, the regular meeting time of the Lions clubs having fallen on Monday, a legal holiday.

Dr. Sawyer had as his subject, "What Did the Fourth of July Mean to You?" After mentioning that the day means merely as occasion for rest and recreation for most people, he gave a comprehensive summary of important historical events to emphasize the real and fundamental significance of the day. The list began with the voyage of Columbus in 1492 and carried through to the present. As the outstanding event of all he named the signing of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776.

This was the opening meeting of the new Rotary administration, headed by E. E. Holt, city school superintendent, as the club president for the coming 12 months. Dr. D. W. Brickley Jr., club vice president, took over the post of program chairman, which he will fill during the year.

Wilson Tway, who concluded his term as president last week, was presented a past president's pin in accordance with club custom. The presentation talk was given by John K. Bartram, a past president.

John Lacey, president of the Lions club, occupied a chair beside the Rotary president and gave a brief talk. He introduced Robert Bush of Marion, a naval officer who is home on leave and who was a guest of the Lions. Rotary guests included Arch Beach and Robert Craven of Marion, and Lt. Frederick E. H. Kuehn of the Marion Engineer Depot, a member of Rotary at Port Townsend, Wash.

Earl N. Hale, Rotary secretary, announced that the speaker at next week's Rotary meeting will be John A. Marsh, special assistant to the deputy minister, department of munitions and supply, Ottawa, Canada. He will address four Rotary clubs in Ohio.

U. S. Naval Forces Shell Kiska; Cruiser Helena Lost at Kula

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7 — An American naval task force bombarded the Japanese base on Kiska island last night, the Navy announced today, in an attack apparently coordinated with the United States offensive against Japanese defenses in the South Pacific.

A navy communique reporting the action in the North Pacific also disclosed that the American cruiser lost in battle with Japanese forces in Kula gulf on the morning of July 6 was the 9,700-ton light cruiser Helena.

The Helena was under command of Captain Charles Purcell Cecil of Louisville, Ky. Neither the fate of the skipper nor the safety of individual crew members was reported.

"The next of kin of the casualties aboard the Helena will be notified as soon as possible," the Navy said.

The cruiser, which had been damaged at Pearl Harbor and was restored to service during the first 12 months of war in the Pacific, was the only announced American loss in the battle, in which six Japanese ships were "probably sunk," and several others, presumably four or more, were damaged.

A communique from General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters last night had numbered the damaged ships as four but today's navy communique said only that there were "several."

Using the MacArthur figure, Japanese naval ship casualties of all types, including sunk or damaged, now total 315 and the enemy has suffered an additional loss of 338 non-combatant ships. The comparable American figure for combatant ships, including the Helena, is 103 vessels overdue and presumed lost, destroyed to prevent capture or sunk. Figures on American ships damaged are not available in their entirety.

The report of the attack on Kiska was very brief. It said only that the enemy was bombarded there and that his shore batteries "did not return the fire."

Trustees and Clerks Meet to Map Arrangements.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, July 7—A meeting of township and village clerks of Wyandot county was held at the court house here to receive instructions on the selection of appraisers for the reappraisement of property in Wyandot county.

The selection of the appraisers will be made by the township trustees and the village councils of the county. Two appraisers, one from each major political party, will be appointed from each town and township.

This reappraisement, conducted every six years, must be completed before the close of 1943. There are 3,943 parcels of property in the townships, and 5,178 parcels in corporations, making a total of 11,121 parcels of real estate in the county.

Richwood Man Held Under Bond of $5,000

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, July 7—Walter Hartman of Richwood, was bound over to the grand jury under $5,000 bond Monday when he entered a plea of guilty to a forgery charge before Justice William H. Faulkner.

He was returned here from Stockton, Calif., by Sheriff Homer S. Rouse Sunday. He was picked up there on an intoxication charge and a check of fingerprints showed he was wanted here. Hartman was placed on probation last January when he entered a plea of guilty to a forgery charge before Common Pleas Judge Richard L. Cameron.

SALES CAUSE PRICE DECLINE

Scattered Selling Sends Market Generally Into Lower Ground Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 7—Scattered selling in the stock market today was enough to push prices generally into lower ground.

The tendency of investors seemed to be one of avoiding new commitments pending a clarification on the war news from Russia, where the goal of forward driving Nazi forces remained in doubt. Also dampening sentiment was the uncertainty over the next Washington move regarding subsidies. From the Pacific theater came encouraging battle dispatches.

Bonds moved irregularly and commodities were mixed.

Backward stocks included Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Woolworth, International Harvester, Westinghouse and New York Central. Resistance was shown by Yellow Truck, Consolidated Edison and preferreds of American Power & Light.

MARION MAN ELECTED TO OFFICE BY OHIO GROUP

Paul D. Reynolds Named Historian by Group within V. F. W.

Paul D. Reynolds who represented Marion Post No. 3313 at the annual convention of V. F. W. in Columbus July 3 and was elected state historian for Marion Pup-Tent No. 27, Military Order of the Cooties, the honor degree of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mrs. Mary A. DeLong and Mildred Pickerel were delegates for the auxiliary.

Russel D. Gessner of Cleveland was named the new Ohio commander and Thomas Felts of Hamilton, was elected senior vice commander. Mrs. Grace Krum of Cleveland was elevated from the post of senior vice commander of the auxiliary to that of president.

RAF Lays Mine Fields Along Enemy Coast

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 7—RAF bombers conducted extensive minelaying operations in enemy waters last night while speedy Mosquitos manned by Canadian crews attacked railway targets in France, the air ministry announced today.

One bomber was lost in these forays, the announcement said.

Two enemy fighter planes flew over the east Anglia district early last evening and at one point a few persons were wounded by machinegun fire. There was no enemy activity over Britain after dark, however.

Vacation Auto Trips Allowed in East

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7—The office of price administration has decided to permit vacation trips in the east, where other transportation is inadequate.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown announced that beginning July 15, motorists in the 12 northeastern states where pleasure driving is banned, can get permits from their local boards for one round trip anywhere, as long as it can be negotiated on the driver's regular ration of coupons.

U. S. Troops in Ireland To Be Shown in Palace Film

A two-reel short subject, "A Letter From Ireland," showing American soldiers in training in Ireland, has been booked by the Palace theater for showings beginning Thursday and continuing through Saturday. Hundreds of faces of United States soldiers in Irish camps are shown during the course of the film.

The film shows the soldiers on sightseeing trips, going through their first air-raid, in moments of relaxation and also the daily routine that make up their new life.

"A Letter From Ireland" will be shown on the same bill with "Journey for Margaret."

New Labor Rules Affect Delaware, Union Counties

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 7—The war manpower commission yesterday placed into effect a program designed to stabilize employment in the Columbus area, embracing Franklin, Delaware, Union, Madison and Pickaway counties.

The regulations, announced by Area Director Wade Hammond, control hiring and job transfers and are intended to prevent labor piracy, reduce excessive labor turnover and absenteeism and encourage upgrading.

Under the regulations no employer may hire or solicit for hire an essential worker unless the worker has a statement of availability from his last employer or the United States employment service.

One rule provides that when a worker willfully provokes his own discharge for the purpose of obtaining a statement of availability he shall be deemed to have voluntarily quit his job.

Gen. Giraud To Visit President at White House

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 7—General Henri Giraud, commander of French forces in North Africa and co-chairman of the French committee for national liberation, will arrive at the White House late today for a conference with President Roosevelt.

The White House announced that Giraud and all the members of his staff accompanying him would see Mr. Roosevelt at 4:30 p. m. Afterward, Giraud and his principal aid and the President and Admiral William D. Leahy, personal chief of staff to Mr. Roosevelt, will have tea at the White House.

Giraud was expected to arrive in midafternoon at a nearby airport where he will be met by Leahy and be taken to Blair House, near the executive mansion, where he will stay during his vacation visit.

ASHTABULA, O., July 7—Dr. Thomas Hubbard, 83, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist and former president of the American Laryngological Society, is dead. He formerly was secretary of the Ohio State Medical society and was credited with perfecting a type of bronchoscope still in use.

GRAIN PRICES DOWN IN TODAY'S TRADING

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 7—Grain prices turned downward throughout most of the session today, but losses were mainly of a fractional nature and some support came into the wheat pit on mill buying. Hedging pressure increased. Transactions in all pits were on a much smaller scale than yesterday.

Deferred contracts of rye showed a decidedly nervous undertone, dropping more than a cent at times on heavy profit-taking. The July contract, however, was an exception, moving up to a new seasonal peak. Offerings of this delivery were small. Oats trading was mixed with profit-taking noticeable.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I HELD my breath as I waited for Dicky's answer. Surely he would never let those two husky bodyguards—I was sure they were formidable — accompany Ruth Hayes into our apartment!

But I need not have worried. His voice, as he answered the "wilderness woman," held a tantalizing, puzzled note.

"Us?" he repeated. "You mean you wish these two worthy gentlemen to come inside with you?"

"Of course that's what I mean!" she retorted. "You don't think I'm coming into your apartment alone, do you?"

Dicky Says No

"To tell you the truth," Dicky said engagingly, "I haven't given the matter the slightest thought as yet. But now that I do consider it, I am afraid, much as it desolates me to refuse a request from so fair a visitor, I shall have to say, 'No, no, a thousand times no!' My mother always told me, you see, never to admit strange men, to whom I hadn't been introduced into my home, especially after midnight."

I could imagine the impudent—and attractive—sraith with which Dicky handed out this atrocious sally. That it had been effective was evident when I heard Ruth Hayes give a little choking sound, of pure rage, I guessed.

"Just say the werd, Missus," one of the men said, "and we'll pin this guy's ears into his eyes!"

"Shut up!" she commanded harshly. Then she spoke to Dicky again.

"You're going to regret these cheap cracks!" she said venomously, "but just now I have no alternative. I'll come in alone."

Chivalrous Dicky

"That is very sweet of you," Dicky assured her. "And it will be quite safe for you to trust me. On my honor, you need not fear for your purse, nor for that which is doubtless dearer to you than life. I am an honorable and a chivalrous gentleman."

"Will you shut that trap of yours long enough to open that door?" she demanded.

"Presently, presently," he said airily. "You see, while we can trust each other, I do not have the same naive feeling toward these weird-sounding gentlemen you have in your train. I really haven't the slightest yen for having my ears pinned into my eyes, so before you come in, I must ask your escorts to go back to the elevator, which I can see from here, ring for it and get into it. When it has started up or down—I do not care which—I will undo the night chain and admit you. But not until then."

His voice changed from mockery to steely decision on the last words, and there was a brief silence, broken at last by a sullen order from Ruth Hayes.

Ruth Gives Orders

"Go back to the elevator," she said; "ring for it, go down, and then do what I told you before."

"Okay," one of them said, and then there was silence, broken at last by the sound of the elevator door closing.

"Now," Dicky said, undoing the night chain, "won't you honor my humble abode by entering it?"

I guessed that he watched her with intent alertness as she went past him, for he did not put up the night chain until she was well inside the room. Then he snapped it, closed the door, and moved toward her, pulling out a comfortable chair as he neared her.

"Won't you be seated?" he asked. "And what may I offer you? A drink? A smoke?"

"Nothing," she said. "I haven't time, and I can't waste what I have talking to you. I suppose you're the lad they call 'the Dickybird.' If you are, please get your wife in here, and that spineless limpet, her friend, Katharine."

Dicky Laughs

I heard Dicky give the low, lazy laugh which he can make the most infuriating sound possible.

"Fie, fie!" he said. "Also, pish! tush! and my goodness gracious! What language, from such ruby lips! You'll disillusion me, if you don't look out."

For the space of a second Ruth Hayes was silent. Then she fairly spat a venomous threat at him.

"Look here, big boy," she said, "I don't know what your game is, but I'm not playing it. That Katharine washout didn't show up tonight as I told her to, and your dame had the nerve to send me a wire she was sick and couldn't keep the appointment. Now, they're not going to do that to me, and get away with it. Where are they?"

YOUR HEALTH

Typhus on Spot

MANY STUDENTS of the history of disease were apprehensive when United States troops were sent to the African theatre of war with a possibility of the invasion of the Balkans because the situation raised the spectre of one of the most vicious diseases that has ever afflicted mankind.

Most of my readers, I presume, have never heard of it. I confess that I have never seen a case and I doubt whether one out of one hundred of my professional friends have. It is typhus fever—not to be confused with typhoid fever — sometimes called spotted fever, jail fever, ship fever and army fever.

Its characteristics are that it appears when large groups of people are herded together and sanitary facilities break down. Or as in the case of our African army, when large numbers of men in close contact with each other come in close contact with a population which has low ideals or no ideals about sanitary care of the body.

Carried By Body Lice

We have discovered that it is carried from person to person by the body louse. The louse infests the clothing of a person who either has typhus or is a carrier of the germ, sucks some of his blood, including the germ, and then moves on to an uninfected person and when it again begins to feed on the uninfected person, instills the germ into his blood.

While the disease has not appeared in this country, except in sporadic cases, for over a century, it is by no means a theoretical menace. After the last war the condition of the Balkans from the universal epidemic of typhus fever made them practically a dead country.

A United States Army commission under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Edgar Erskine Hume, of the Medical Corps of the Army, was sent to Serbia after the Armistice in 1918. At that time the only method of dealing with the epidemic was to delouse the person and clothing of every individual. The "Serbian barrel" in which the clothing were sterilized became a familiar sight in cities and along the roadways of the countries.

The epidemic was finally conquered in this way, but not until it had exacted an enormous mortality toll. Colonel Hume has recently told of this and other aspects of the work of the Medical Corps of the Army in a book called Victories of Army Medicine (published by J. B. Lippincott, Philadelphia, 1943).

But the use of a vaccine which was more or less problematical in its effectiveness was universally instituted and it is a great relief to be able to say by now that this vaccine appears to have been completely successful. The American military forces in North Africa have come through almost untouched by typhus fever, although the disease was rampant in the region which they invaded in 1942.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, July 8

THIS APPEARS to be a day in which ideals, dreams, glamor and abilities born of emotional impulses and aspirations become manifest in the world of reality. It may be difficult, under such lofty impulsion, to concentrate the energies and efforts on the workaday, when the fine creative faculties clamor for expression. This may disturb or aggravate elders, but the strategic use of personal charm or heightened magnetism may wear away all antagonisms. It is wise to conserve these delicate forces and faculties, lest they undermine health.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a year in which the higher and finer phases of creative expression may clamor for constructive form in a world of reality rather than ideals. Beauty, charm, emotional as well as physical and psychical forces are under splendid impetus for accomplishment.

A child born on this day may be richly endowed with artistic, musical and intellectual abilities and be idealistic and perhaps psychic or mystical. Its personal charm and magnetism assure a delightful life.
